

New and forthcoming books

The following books have recently been published and look relevant to members' interests. Please email the Elucidate editor if you are interested in reviewing one or more of them. If you notice a book or resource you feel would be of interest to UKeIG readers, let us know with a review or mention.

The Future of Scholarly Communication

Edited by Deborah Shorley, Imperial College London and Michael Jubb, Research Information Network

The editors draw together the informed commentary of internationally-renowned experts from all sectors and backgrounds to define the future of research communication.

Global thought-leaders define the future of research communication. Governments and societies globally agree that a vibrant and productive research community underpins a successful knowledge economy but the context, mechanisms and channels of research communication are in flux. As the pace of change quickens there needs to be analysis of new trends and drivers, their implications and a future framework. The Future of Scholarly Communication draws together the informed commentary of internationally-renowned experts from all sectors and backgrounds to define the future of research communication.

Marketing Your Library's Electronic Resources

A how-to-do-it manual

Marie R. Kennedy and Cheryl LaGuardia

This essential guide to marketing libraries' e-resources shows librarians how to make sure their customers understand what is available to them online and allow them to use their e-resources fully.