ILI IS LOOKING FOR SPEAKERS

Internet Librarian International (ILI) celebrates innovation. Every year, hundreds of library and information professionals from around the world come together at ILI to exchange ideas, knowledge and experience. You are invited to play a part by sharing your library stories with the global ILI audience.

As we continue to monitor the coronavirus outbreak, we send good wishes to our ILI friends, families and colleagues and to all those affected by COVID-19 around the world. We are proud of the community that has developed around the ILI conference over the past twenty-two years and we remain committed to the event and the wider endeavours it represents.

We still seek speakers for ILI, so please share your stories with our community. The official deadline for submissions is 17th April 2020, but we remain open to hearing your ideas beyond that date during these extraordinary and challenging times.

We warmly encourage friends, old and new, to share your strategies for the 2020s - case studies, great stories, personal experiences and lessons learned from the ideas, strategies and practical implementations you've put in place. Our focus is on real-world innovations, big or small. We want to hear how you are making a difference to your organisation, clients and communities.

Our speakers come from all over the world - from academic and research libraries, public libraries, school libraries, corporate settings and more - to share their real-world projects, initiatives and transformations. Mostly they do this by presenting a fifteen-minute case study.

Here are some topics and themes to get you excited - from AI and big data to zero cost projects - but don't be limited by this list: we also have a wildcard option! Send us your ideas here.
